Other meetings may be arranged in advance

Required material:

Novice Mid students will use Al Kitaab fi Ta'allum al-'Arabiyya I by Mahmoud Al-Batal/Kristen Brustad, et al., second edition (Georgetown, 2006), chapters 7 – 10, provided by the institute. Additional material, such as texts and exercises from other textbooks and authentic sources, will be presented in class.

Recommended text:

The Hans Wehr Dictionary of Modern Written Arabic by Hans Wehr, fourth edition, edited by J. Milton Cowan (Ithaca, NY: Spoken Language Services); an Arabic-English Dictionary

Online dictionary: several are available, e.g. the Cambridge Dictionary at www.dictionary.cambridge.org/dictionary/english-arabic/

Online learning: <http://www.cram.com/> , <http://www.aljazeera.net/portal>

Learning outcomes:

At the end of the Novice high level, students will be able to express themselves cohesively in short, simple sentences. Students will possess a good amount of basic vocabulary as used in familiar and everyday situations with a limited ability to use this vocabulary correctly grammatically in all related situations. They will be able to answer formulaic questions with only rare occurrences of mistakes in vocabulary and grammar. Students will also start to express their thoughts independently of formulaic expressions, though their explanations may be incomplete or incorrect at times.

Students will learn how to use preposition and be able to recognize and implement the verb kāna. They will be able to negate verbal sentences. They will be able to answer formulaic questions with only rare occurrences of mistakes in vocabulary and grammar.

Topics covered:

- Numbers 11 - 100
- currencies
- hobbies
- daily routines
- family and student relationships
- weekly programs, TV programs

Media Literacy

Noor Majan Training Institute uses authentic materials from print and broadcast media, as well as from the internet. Students acquire the competence to take in, understand, and comment on news broadcasts, articles, excerpts, and forum contributions using the appropriate register.

For the novice high level these materials can include, but are not limited to, financial reports schedules, program announcements/trailers, graphs, or maps, and job portraits.

Course Requirements

- Participation in class: Attendance is obligatory. Furthermore, each student is expected to participate in class and to be adequately prepared to do so. Assignments will be discussed and corrected in class. Students will be graded on quantity and quality of participation. More than two absences might result in the termination of students' course participation.
- Oral presentations: Students will have to give weekly presentations in class about different issues.
- Portfolio: Students will prepare a portfolio in the media class to document their progress and topical and language learning.
- Homework & written assignments: Students are expected to accomplish the given homework and writing assignments within the announced time frame. Homework assignments can be either collected, or corrected, or presented in class. Students will be graded on the extent and regularity of accomplishment, as well as their correctness.

Exams:

- Tests: Throughout the course students will be presented with weekly quizzes to test different language skills in the classroom. These small tests take place every Thursday (except the last Thursday of each course).
- Final exam: The final exam is taken at the very end of the course and examines language development in all skills. It takes place on the last Wednesday of the course.

Student Evaluation

Students receive feedback from instructors throughout the course. Evaluation is a reflection of the student's proficiency, participation, engagement and progress. Feedback is based on oral participation in class, results in quizzes, tests, portfolios, mid-term and final exams as well as oral presentations in class and homework completion. Students will meet their teachers individually at least once on a weekly basis during office hours to discuss their performance and progress.
